DETAILED ACTIONClaim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Grove et al. '468 in view of Tumey et al. '440 and Mizrachy '374.

Grove teaches a base 20, a foot rest 111 hingedly coupled to the base, an inflatable lifting bladder 133 and a pressure source 1. The only difference between the claimed invention and Grove is the provision of including massaging elements with the device. The Grove device is to stimulate circulation and exercise the muscles of the legs and feet to maintain or increase blood and lymph circulation. The Tumey device includes an inflatable bladder under the foot to increase or stimulate blood flow in a limb extremity such as a foot. The device could be considered a massage sock because it is made of a flexible outer shell 22 for wrapping around the foot. It also includes a plurality of bladders located for heel massage, instep massage and sole massage. Mizrachy is merely cited to teach the conventional combination of flexing the foot along with massaging to increase blood circulation as shown in the embodiment of figures 3 and 3a. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Grove to include massaging elements such as the sock of Tumey to enhance the method of improving circulation as further suggested by Mizrachy.

Regarding claim 3, Tumey teaches using hook and loop fasteners to close the sock however, any conventional means such as a zipper for securing the two portions of the sock together would have been an obvious provision.

Regarding claims 5-8, Tumey teaches using two separate bladders however, there is no unobviousness to dividing the bladders into any number of bladders so as to isolate different areas of the foot for specific treatment. Tumey also teaches that each bladder has a different pressure for applying different amounts of pressure to different parts of the body. While Tumey teaches using a flow restrictor to accomplish this task, merely using the controller 1 to control the amount of pressure in each bladder would have been an obvious provision. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to further modify Grove to use the controller to control the pressure within each bladder to automate the process to better control exactly what pressure is in each bladder.
